Vacation Rental homes on San Juan Island are an integral industry and provide employment to year-round islanders. Tourism to the San Juan Island generates revenue locally that supports so many people that dream of living here full time. My name is Logan Johnson, I have lived on San Juan Island for two years, and I have been a property manager with San Juan Property Management, a vacation rental management company in Friday Harbor for two years. Being employed with this company has provided stability, job security and an opportunity to grow as a person and expand my skills in hospitality.

If the decision is made to extend the moratorium I have the fear that it is only going to hurt full time resident like myself. I have dreams of raising a family on this beautiful island and that starts with the foundation of a strong permanent job taking care of these homes.

In the two years on San Juan my fiancé and I have had the honor of starting a small business in town. With the threat of losing the business that vacation rentals brings is a stress that grows deeper and deeper every time vacation rentals get put on the chopping block.

I oppose the vacation rental permit moratorium and I oppose the extension of the moratorium past the current 6 month time frame.

From a year round islander,

Logan Johnson
